

The Formentera Culture Department reports that from Monday 1 February, the municipal exhibition space will welcome Autoretratos, a new display of work by Christoph Steinmeyer.

The German artist’s work over the last decade has been described as “hyperrealist”.

A series of five outsize self-portraits fashioned here on the island over the last three months, the show constitutes new territory and a turning point in Steinmeyer’s career.

Steinmeyer’s art hangs in galleries in Europe and North America, and he has displayed his work in public institutions around the globe.

Autoretratos will be on view Monday to Saturday (1–6 February) from 11.00am to 2.00pm and 7.00pm to 9.00pm. With the island’s passage to Enhanced Tier 4 of public health alert, capacity at “Ajuntament Vell” will be limited to five people and visitors must wear masks, respect distancing rules and wash hands.
